Anti-Slavery Office,
New York, 11 April, 1862.

Dear Garrison,
41

The Longwood friends want to secure the attendance of M. D. Conway at the Yearly Meeting, June 5th. They cannot pay all the expenses of his journey hither and back, even if it should be possible for him to come; and I write to ask whether the engagement he was under for the New England Convention last year cannot be renewed for this, in case he will consent. The Longwood friends will cheerfully pay the expense of the journey (perhaps even to Boston) to that place, from Cincinnati. ~~perhaps~~ Would not the New England Convention assume the rest for the sake of his presence? Mind, I do not urge this; I only suggest it for your consideration. I have written to him on the subject, and may learn that it is impossible for him to come at all; but if he should be inclined to come, I would like to have it in my power to tell him that he is wanted in Boston. I would not ask anything better for our New York Anniversary, than the speech he delivered here to a ward meeting on Wednesday evening. It was full of wit and sound argument. His delivery is not good, but he somehow enchains the attention of his audience, and I should be very glad indeed to make a place for him in our platform in this city.

Please answer this as soon as you conveniently

Can.

Yours, truly,

A. Johnson